

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE REPUBLICAN PARTY?!

VO: What happened to the Republican Party?

Sounds of fight.

VO: Nazis.

TRUMP: "very fine people"

TRUMP: "Grab 'em by the pussy ..." etc.

VO: Roy Moore — accused of assaulting 3 underage girls.

Kavanaugh: "FFFFFFourth of July"

Blasey-Ford: "... seared into my memory."

McConnell: "Were' going to plow right through."

VO: Separating children from their families.

VO: President Trump's personal lawyer.

VO: Trump former foreign policy advisor.

VO: Republican Congressman.

VO: Trump staffers.

VO: Trump former foreign policy advisor.

VO: Trump former campaign chairman.

VO: Hush money paid to Stormy Daniels.

TRUMP: "I mean, it could be Russia, but it could also be China. It could also be lots of other people."

VO: How much is too much?

VO: Where do YOU draw the line?

WILL: I don't recognize the Republican Party. Do you?

>>> Traditional campaign ads don't address the wave of change that's dividing our country. Values ads can speak to our shared concerns about the national discord — and unify us. Values-based ads frame the issues through the lense of ethical decency — and the ads can connect the dots to clarify what's really at stake. A series of ads can string together clips on these subjects:

1. false and condradicting statements
2. giveaways to the rich
3. meanness and divisiveness
4. tweetstorms
5. what the GOP has been up to — a scrolling list of laws and policy changes.